RILEY'S FIRST HIT.

Wrote a Poem "by Poe" and Palmes it on the Public.
James Whitcomb Riley began his career in a newspaper office in Anderson, Ind., by writing humorous rhymes as "advertising locals" - "doggerel" he called them. At the same time he wrote many rhymes with the serious intention of having them, if possible, recognized as poems. But he could not get them published. Even compositions whose worth he had tested - those that "would please people when I'd stand up and read 'em to them" - would be returned promptly by every magazine to which he offered them for publication. The Hoosier dialect was too "low down" for the average magazine editor.

Finally in a freak of boyish indignation, to prove that what editors really wanted was not originality, but imitation, he devised the scheme of writing a poem in imitation of Poe and of palming it off on the public as a real poem of Poe's recently discovered. The scheme was very skillfully planned and very deftly executed and successful beyond anything the cleverest of it had ever dreamed. From one end of the country to the other "Leonanie" was hailed as a veritable "find," a bit of genius' most genuine ore. Riley had his revenge. He had some trouble, however, in proving that he was not an intentional forger.

He lost his newspaper position, but he immediately got another and better one on the Indianapolis Journal. "Come and get pay for your work," said Judge Martindale, the editor. The turn in the tide had come.

Antiquity of the Mortgage.

The legal document known as a mortgage can be traced as far back as the dawn of authentic history. The mortgage comes directly down to us from the Romans, but its antiquity is much more remote than the Roman nation. The Greeks, Carthaginians, Persians, Egyptians, Babylonians, all knew of the mortgage and daily used it in their business transactions. It is safe to say that the custom of giving mortgages is practically as old as settled human society. - New York American.

More Than Luck.

"Do you believe in special providence?"
"Sure! When I was a boy the school I attended was struck by lightning one night and burned."
"Nothing special about that."
"Oh, but it was just the night before the circus came to town!" - Philadelphia Ledger.

Filial Obedience.

"Harold," she murmured in his ear, "mamma says I mustn't encourage you to come here so often, and I have to do as she tells me, of course, but you don't need any encouragement - do you, dear?"

How poor are they that have no patience. - Shakespeare.

A Fearful Retort.

On one of his raids Benedict Arnold captured an American officer in Virginia. After a few days he said, "Captain, what would our countrymen do with me if they caught me?"

"Well, sir," replied the captain, "if I must answer the question I should say that if my countrymen should catch you they would first cut off your lame leg, which was wounded in the cause of freedom and virtue at Quebec, and bury it with the honors of war. Then they would hang the remainder of your carcass on a gibbet!"

Absence of Mind.

Many amusing anecdotes are told of Bishop Burnet's absence of mind, but few perhaps are more striking and have been less repeated than the following, which Lord Orford used to relate:

Burnet was once dining with the Duchess of Marlborough after the great duke's disgrace. In the course of conversation, speaking of Marlborough's great qualities, great services and great fall, Burnet compared the duke with Belshazzar, the great Roman.

"But how in reason," exclaimed the duchess, "could so great a general be abandoned?"

"Ah, my lady, do you know what a cursed trisyllable of a wife he had?"
The hearers to the good Burnet's surprise, were confused and dumb struck with the force of the parallel he discovered in the cases of the Roman and the Englishman. - St. James' Gazette.

He arose and looked around. No, an eye was turned in his direction. The audience seemed oblivious of his existence. But, no! A shrill voice suddenly greeted him. "Sit down, you big monkey!" it said.

He slowly sank into his seat. A sigh broke from his lips.

He was forgotten.

And yet only ten short years before he was the idolized halfback of his college eleven, and 20,000 shrieking voices had cheered his prowess. - Cleveland Leader.

Going Her One Better.

Helene - What do you think? Lieutenant von Rutz told me yesterday that I looked so ripping in my new frock he could kiss me.

Magdalene - Oh, when he saw me in mine he said nothing. He just kissed me. - Magdalenor Blatter.

Will Know Later.

Boss (aged twelve) - Mother, why is it that they always speak of the goddess of victory and never of the god of victory?

Her Mother - When you're married, my dear, you'll understand that. - Fife grande Blatter.
